SCHOOL OF NURSING
MEMORIAL UNIVERSITY OF NEWFOUNDLAND

(12 Month Teaching Term Appointments)

The School of Nursing at Memorial University of Newfoundland offers several programs and plays a leadership role in nursing research.

The School of Nursing will make 12 month teaching term appointments for the 2018-19 academic year for clinical teaching (acute care nursing of adults, maternal/child nursing, nursing of children, mental health nursing and community health nursing). In addition, the School of Nursing requires an instructor to teach anatomy and physiology lectures and labs.

While these appointments are for clinical teaching, occasionally the incumbent may be asked to teach a classroom or lab course.

The minimum qualifications for teaching term appointments at the undergraduate level are a completed Bachelor of Nursing degree and a master's degree, with preference given to applicants with a master's degree in nursing. Candidates who are near completion of a master's degree will also be considered. Please note that all successful applicants must hold a current practicing license with the Association of Registered Nurses of Newfoundland and Labrador (ARNNL) for the duration of the contract period.

Direct care experience in at least one of the clinical areas of practice is required for clinical teaching.

All positions are subject to budgetary approval and sufficient enrollment.

A complete application is comprised of: (a) a letter of introduction outlining relevant clinical and teaching experience; (b) evidence of effective teaching; (c) curriculum vitae; and (d) the name and contact information (including email) of three referees. Incomplete applications will not be considered.
