

CALL FOR ABSTRACTS – Deadline January 20, 2020

In celebration of 100 years of Nursing at Western University and the International Year of the Nurse and Midwife, the Arthur Labatt Family School of Nursing invites submission of abstracts for its coming research conference:

Honouring our Past, Creating our Future:
Transforming Education, Services, Systems and Policies that Impact Health

May 7- 8, 2020, Doubletree Hilton, London, Ontario

This 2-day conference will bring together researchers, graduate students, practitioners, and decision-makers for dialogue and exchange with a focus on the transformative potential of research in improving health and well-being across varied contexts and the conditions that shape health – past, present and future. Delegates from all disciplines who have an interest in these issues are most welcome.

The Conference program includes hands-on workshops, keynote presentations by international experts in global health and digital health, a Technology Expo and Art-Based Research Session, a full program of oral presentations covering a range of topics, and special networking opportunities for graduate students and future leaders.

Abstracts for completed or in-progress research, program evaluation, policy analyses, theory development, or other scholarly work, inclusive of clinical and applied research, will be accepted until January 20, 2020.

We are particularly interested in presentations in the following areas:

- Digital Health, Technology, and Health Care
- Violence, Gender, and Health
- Strengthening Mental Health and Wellness
- Women's Health
- Global and Indigenous Health
- Health Equity, Inequity and Structural Violence
- Promoting Transformative Change in Services, Systems and Policies [all sectors]

Full conference details and online abstract submission can be accessed at:

<https://www.uwo.ca/fhs/nursing/100/conference/>

We hope to see you in London in May!