01:34:45 From jerickson: I am sorry my microphone is not working. Elizabeth, I am trying to put together a simulation in VR for a large group of learners. Have you done any simulation in VR yet?

01:35:04 From Nancy Histed: Thank you Elizabeth, that was great! Can you share the paper please?

01:35:12 From Raquel: Excellent presentation Elizabeth, love your energy!

01:35:13 From Liz Seabrook: Do you suggest the pre-brief be in person with the group or have them do it independently in another environment?

01:35:58 From Kelly Hudder: What was the name of the last article you shared

01:38:52 From saira: psychological safety is important point for learner and equally important for novice simulationist. will followup about this point by email

01:39:04 From Elizabeth Horsley: ehorsley@tbh.org

01:39:44 From Elizabeth Wells-Beede: He's at Texas Tech. Kyle Johnson.

01:40:47 From Amanda Egert: yes please! I would love that paper

01:40:51 From Jan Marie Graham: Yes please!

01:41:03 From Darin Abbey [he/him]: Large groups can be facilitated well with observation tools as well

01:42:51 From beatrice.posse: do you share the scenario with the student during the prebriefing?

01:44:49 From Amanda Egert: We share more or less detail depending on the level of student.

In some we add medications to research etc.

01:47:36 From Paula Mastrilli: Elizabeth, Great presentation. How can we get a copy of your PPT with references?

01:49:21 From Marie McEwan: Considering psychological safety what are your recommendations for possible situations that may be embedded in the case that could be triggering for learners.

02:10:51 From iPad de Anne: Please could you show us again the QR code? Thanks a lot

02:11:04 From James Bridgewater - CASN Staff: Contact Information for all of today's speakers located on the CASN website here: <https://www.casn.ca/2022/01/simulation-professional-development-virtual-forum/>

02:12:43 From Amanda Egert: I am curious your thoughts about facilitating for multiple groups at once. We have one facilitator, but 4 beds running.

02:12:51 saira: Amount of (cues) is important point on the part facilitator.

02:15:12 From Darin Abbey [he/him]: it seems like many faculty have never or it has been a long time since they were a participant in a simulation. what are your thoughts of having them do so to reinforce best practices?

02:15:46 From Darin Abbey [he/him]: does anyone do this?

02:15:54 From saira: May be a pre-established rubric with key elements to focus observation on the part of facilitator

02:15:54 From Suzan Kardong-Edgren: type TagTeam for Patient Safety into Google. There is a whole website for managing large groups using Tag Team here.

02:16:14 From Elizabeth Horsley: That's a great idea Darin! I've done it. Very beneficial and a tad frightening!

02:16:14 From Suzan Kardong-Edgren: Loads of free scenarios also.

02:16:21 From Suzan Kardong-Edgren: Australian group'

02:16:39 From Barbara Wilson-Keates: bwilsonkeates@athabascau.ca

02:16:47 From Paula Mastrilli: I believe Western Ontario; School of Nursing delivers their simulations like your description. You may wish to contact their simulationist.

02:17:13 From Amanda Egert: @Paula thank you! I will look for a contact

02:48:57 From James Bridgewater - CASN Staff:If you are not a speaker/panelist, please ensure you have muted your Mic so as not to disrupt the presentation with background sound

03:03:36 From Renee Anderson: What are your thoughts / what does the evidence say about online self-debriefing? We trialed this for the first time yesterday but had some software glitches ... so I have no idea / no insight about its effectiveness.

03:03:37 From Kristen MacKenzie, CNE Athabasca Healthcare Centre, AB: It's on now

03:03:39 From Megan Hiscott: It's working again now

03:04:05 From Elizabeth Horsley: Hi Amanda:

03:04:29 From Amanda Egert: I am also curious if other content can be addressed during debriefing: Review of preparation (concept map, nursing care plans, medication cards).

03:04:29 From Elizabeth Horsley:I have some stuff on that model. Kathie Lassiter adapted Tanner's model for simulation

03:04:51 From Jami Gillis: I am wondering how a simulation debrief would shift when working with frontline professionals rather than students

03:04:53 From saira: is there any alternative for recording option in debriefing?

03:05:42 From Kala: Debriefing for Meaningful Learning has tools to help you adapt to clinical debriefs

03:06:01 From Amanda Egert: @Elizabeth thank you! I'll reach out.

03:06:18 From Elizabeth Horsley: No problem!

03:07:03 From Margaret Verkuyl: I would suggest that you can use any framework and then use the clinical judgement language when asking questions

03:07:49 From Amanda Egert: @Margaret - that's a great idea

03:07:51 From Margaret Verkuyl: the clinical judgement approach is a clinical reasoning tool not a debriefing tool

03:07:55 From saira: sound is breaking up

03:08:20 From Margaret Verkuyl: sorry debriefing framework

03:08:37 From saira: sure, will email

03:09:17 From Jennifer Langille: Thanks Sandra, Nice to see you!

03:10:04 From Margaret Verkuyl: just because someone has a video camera off does not mean they are not engaged

03:10:23 From Renee Anderson: What are your thoughts / what does the evidence say about online self-debriefing? We trialed this for the first time yesterday but had some software glitches ... so I have no idea / no insight about its effectiveness.

03:10:26 From Margaret Verkuyl: same as if the video camera is on...it does not mean they are engaged sometimes we make that judgement

03:10:42 From Elizabeth Horsley: And just because a camera is on, it doesn't mean they are engaged.....

03:11:01 From Elizabeth Horsley: Great minds Marg.....

03:11:02 From Dave Patterson: Very true Marg - also depends on bandwidth we are using

03:11:23 From Rebecca LaRocca: I have a question for Sandra....can't find the hand function!

03:11:26 From Suzan Kardong-Edgren: great resource is

<https://www.healthcaredistancesim.com/>

03:11:49 From Suzan Kardong-Edgren: These folks have a paper coming out form Delphi study on best practices for distance sim debriefing.

03:26:46 From Elizabeth Horsley: Thank you for the link to KT's lecture. Looking forward to is 03:27:03 From Amanda Egert: Thank you very much for the work on this Standard! It has helped me make a business case to my AD for funding.

03:27:09 From Elizabeth Horsley: If anyone has questions on the CHSE certification, don't hesitate to reach out to me

03:27:10 From Natalie Ford: Would you mind putting the link to the YouTube lecture in the chat?

03:29:35 From Rebecca LaRocca: Thanks for asking that question, Kelly, I was going to ask where does one start!

03:29:43 From Julia: Would you mind putting a link to the workshop you just mentioned?

03:29:44 From Elizabeth Horsley: The simulation world is the most collaborative group ever!

03:30:09 From Suzanne Campbell: shout out to Suzie mentoring - 2008 or so for me :D

03:30:31 From Joan Jacobson: We are struggling to acquire a Simulationist position within our Department of Nursing Education due to budget roadblocks and therefore we don't have a "lead" position and faculty are basically on their own to develop and integrate simulation. Any advice on how to navigate this roadblock?

03:30:35 From Devin Crockett: #ThankYouNurseEducators

<https://www.casn.ca/2022/04/national-nursing-week-2022/>

03:32:04 From Sandra Goldsworthy: good question Barb!

03:32:30 From Sandra Goldsworthy: mentorship is key in application

03:33:52 From nicosiabrake: Is there a template that's been evaluated for peer review? I'm curious about that only because of the varying levels of comfort with faculty in all aspects of simulation.

03:36:16 From Kristen MacKenzie, CNE Athabasca Healthcare Centre, AB: I still have people that have PTSD from old school ACLS

03:36:48 From Barbara Wilson-Keates: ACLS has changed so much. thank heavens

03:37:11 From Lucie Raymond: our hospital is building a new SIM lab. Where do we start?? We have completed the simulation course from SIM Canada, but it does not teach you how to start. I don't know where to start on how to build my first simulation. I'm very much a hands-on person and I am struggling.

03:37:18 From Andrea.Orr@twu.ca: Do you have a link or more info about that article you just referenced?

03:37:37 From Joan Jacobson: Thank you so much! I was really happy to see Professional Development as a Standard.

04:12:13 From Barb Fagan: I hear COVID is transmissible?

04:12:27 From Barbara Wilson-Keates: 😊

04:12:51 From Laura Roberts: It's also frustrating changing old mind sets to keep simulation secret and not tell students what it will be about (eyeroll)

04:13:07 From Barb Fagan: Thank you Dr. Horsley

04:16:42 From nicosiabrake: Is there a sim alliance in Canada? As in a group that meets regularly to discuss up and coming topics? I'm a member of a couple of different groups but have not yet seen anything that has regular meetings and have seen mostly just pooling of resources.

04:17:06 From Margaret Verkuyl: CASN has a simulation interest group

04:17:18 From Margaret Verkuyl: that meets regularly

04:17:23 From nicosiabrake: Thanks!

04:17:25 From Barbara Wilson-Keates: There's CASN virtual simulation group; we meet a few times a year. Check out the website; next meeting is May 31

04:17:29 From Carla Ferreira (she/her): CanSIM perhaps

04:17:57 From Laura Roberts: yes, Can-Sim <https://can-sim.ca/>

04:18:44 From Sandra Goldsworthy: mentorship is key

04:18:45 From nicosiabrake: I'm a member of Can-sim and use the resources but have not regularly seen meetings.

04:18:53 From Sheema Inayatulla - CASN/ACESI: CASN's interest groups - including the Simulation Interest group - <http://cnei-icie.casn.ca/our-programs/nurse-educator-interest-groups/>

04:18:56 From Barbara Wilson-Keates: <http://cnei-icie.casn.ca/our-programs/nurse-educator-interest-groups/>

04:19:28 From nicosiabrake: Thank you!

04:19:48 From Elizabeth Horsley: I can't stress enough how collaborative and sharing the sim world is. I'm constantly putting posts out on the SSH forums looking for ideas and always get things back

04:19:49 From Laurie Freeman: Thank you all!

04:19:56 From Laura Roberts: @nicosiabrake I am a member of CAN-Sim itself but they also have an interest/research group that meets a few times a year

04:44:57 From Cheryl Dyke (she/her) College of the North Atlantic, NL: Can the link be added to the chat?

04:46:41 From Elizabeth Wells-Beede: <https://ecampusontario.pressbooks.pub/vlsvstoolkit/>

04:49:22 From Vimbayi M: Hello Margaret could you please share the link to access the virtual healthcare experience simulation modules.

04:51:40 From yvonnegalbraith: Thats it

04:53:11 From Shannon Jackson: Hello! Was wondering if you'd be able to share resources on simulation evaluation tools!

04:53:41 From Amanda Egert: Do you ask for analytics even if the simulation is non-evaluative?

04:54:25 From Anne Redmond: Excellent approach!

04:58:12 From Margaret Verkuyl: mverkuyl@centennialcollege.ca

05:01:35 From Lorraine VM: thank you for sharing the links :)

05:13:06 From Amanda Egert: Do you have a link for the application?

05:13:10 From Renee Anderson: Hi Laura... will there be a cost associated with this

05:13:29 From Paula Mastrilli: Will there be a cost to the application when it opens?

05:13:31 From Amanda Egert: ah got it
