

The School of Nursing in Dalhousie's Faculty of Health invites applications from qualified candidates for a full-time, three-year limited term faculty position at the rank of Assistant or Associate Professor, specializing as a Nurse Practitioner – Family All Ages.

Dalhousie University is comprised of 6,000 faculty and staff amongst its 13 faculties. Current enrollment is 21,000 graduate and undergraduate students. As part of Canada's U15 research-intensive group, Dalhousie University is an influential driver of the region's intellectual, social, and economic development. It is the largest university in Atlantic Canada and is located on the ancestral and unceded territory of the Mi'kmaq in the heart of Halifax (Kjipuktuk), a scenic coastal city and capital of Nova Scotia which is home to 13 Mi'kmaq First Nations, a deeply rooted African Nova Scotia community, an increasingly diverse population which also includes a vibrant workforce of people living with (dis)Abilities.

The Faculty of Health's faculty, staff and students are committed to improving the well-being of individuals, families, communities and populations through diverse health programming, collaborative research, and strong community partnerships. The Faculty of Health is one of the largest faculties at Dalhousie, comprised of eight schools, one college and one program, more than 200 faculty members, 80 staff members, and over 3,000 students. With the most programmatically diverse health faculty in Canada, our students are exposed to a broad range of health topics and learning experiences.

The School of Nursing's Strategic Plan, which aligns with that of the Faculty of Health and Dalhousie University, guides the realization of our vision of transforming healthcare through nursing education, research, and scholarship. Our values are to strive for excellence; embed equity and inclusion in all that we do; embrace broad perspectives of health; care for our students, staff, and faculty; collaborate with respect and reciprocity; and commit to viable growth.

The primary responsibilities of the successful candidate will include teaching undergraduate and/or graduate students and contributing to the service of the School. The School is seeking a practicing Nurse Practitioner currently holding, or eligible for a university faculty appointment to educate and prepare nurses for advanced practice as Nurse Practitioners with a focus in Family All Ages. The successful candidate must have a minimum of two years NP clinical practice and be eligible for registration as a NP with the Nova Scotia College of Nursing. A background in some combination of leadership, knowledge mobilization, equity, diversity, inclusion and, accessibility (EDIA) in healthcare, interprofessional education, distance, and context-based learning, and/or clinical simulation would be assets.

Successful candidates must hold a Nurse Practitioner license and at minimum a Master's degree in Nursing. Competitive applicants must demonstrate excellence in clinical practice, some experience in teaching. Assets include teaching in an MN-NP program and a Doctorate degree in Nursing or health related discipline. The candidate is expected to become an active and engaged member of the School, Faculty and University. Activities at local, national, and international levels are expected to promote continuous improvement in teaching and learning at Dalhousie. There is no expectation of a research workload associated with this position.

Applicants must include a cover letter stating qualifications and experience, community engagement and /or lived experience in relation to equity, diversity, inclusion, and accessibility (EDIA); a current Curriculum Vitae; and a teaching dossier, including a statement of teaching experience and interests as well of copies of teaching evaluations if available.

All application materials should be submitted directly at <https://dal.peopleadmin.ca/postings/15616>. Only upon request will shortlist candidates be asked to provide contact details of referees.

Hard copies of the application will not be accepted.
